

36

Greater Good

MAGAZINE OF THE GREATER GOOD SCIENCE CENTER AT UC BERKELEY

Winter 2007-08

Volume IV, Issue 3

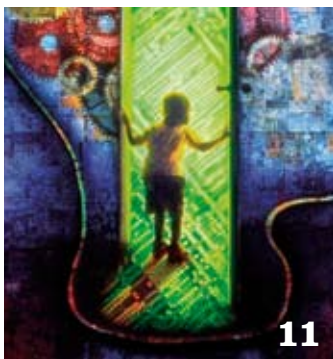

No matter what happened to us in childhood, we never stop growing.

11

“The political brain is an emotional brain.”

36

11

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF POWER

14 The Power Paradox

True power requires modesty and empathy, not force and coercion, argues Dacher Keltner. But what people want from leaders—social intelligence—is what is damaged by the experience of power.

18 Are You a Jerk at Work?

Robert I. Sutton explains how to handle bullies in the office—and prevent our own “inner jerk” from getting out. Plus: A story of being “poisoned by power.”

22 Peaceful Parenting

Sura Hart and Victoria Kindle Hodson explain how to turn parent-child conflict into cooperation.

24 Political Primates

Are humans prone to try to dominate or live harmoniously with each other? Christopher Boehm uncovers a seven-million-year-old answer.

27 Honesty and Respect

Couples often struggle over sex and intimacy, but Claude M. Steiner offers a path to more satisfying relationships.

28 Power Sickness

Feeling powerless is bad for our health, reports Eve Ekman. What can we do about it?

Plus: The stress of high status.

31 Playing with Power

Jason Marsh reflects on an educational classic.

FEATURES

32 Closing the Circuit

Helen Mayberg could revolutionize depression treatment. By Jill Suttie

34 Stop! Calm Down! Think!

Research shows that the Second Step program is creating kinder, smarter schools.

By Dawn Friedman

2 from the editors

3 letters to the editors

4 in brief

Healthy urban neighborhoods
How meditation boosts health
Do we need God to be good?
And more...

COLUMNS

Brain Teaser: Does sleeping well help our social lives?

Body Language: Dance!

Social Intelligence: Daniel Goleman explains “mindsight.”

12 Q&A

The Socially Intelligent Superpower

An interview with foreign policy expert Anne-Marie Slaughter

36 in review

Print: New books peer inside voters’ brains; plus, happiness, gratitude, pacifism, and more.

Culture: Supernanny sends a tough message to parents, but does it really help?

40 an idea for the greater good

Allan Horwitz and Jerome Wakefield explore the virtues of sadness.

41 resources for the greater good